

History of The Bharat Scouts and Guides

1. Beginning of Scouting in India (Before Independence)

Scouting began in 1909, just two years after Lord BadenPowell started the Scout Movement in England (1907).

The first Scout troop in India was formed in Bangalore by Captain T. H. Gibson.

In the early days, only European boys were allowed to join.

Later, Indian leaders like Justice Vivian Bose and Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya helped open Scouting for Indian boys.

2. Beginning of Guiding in India

The Girl Guides movement began in 1911 in India.

Indian girls were allowed to join after 1928, when the All India Girl Guides Association was formed.

3. Different Scout and Guide Groups Before Independence

Before 1947, there were many separate organizations, such as:

The Boy Scouts Association in India

The Hindustan Scouts Association

The Seva Samiti Scouts

The Girl Guides Association

They all worked separately but had similar aims.

4. After Independence (1947–1950)

After India got independence, leaders wanted one national organization.

In 1950, all Scout groups united to form “The Bharat Scouts and Guides.”

In 1951, the Girl Guides also joined this national body.

Thus, The Bharat Scouts and Guides (BSG) became one single organization for both boys and girls.

5. Present Day

The BSG is now a member of the World Organization of the Scout Movement (WOSM) and the World Association of Girl Guides and Girl Scouts (WAGGGS).

It has millions of members all over India.

The headquarters is in New Delhi.

It continues to promote service, discipline, patriotism, and character building.

 Motto: “Be Prepared” (सदा तैयार)

 Slogan: “Do a Good Turn Daily”

 Aim: To make good citizens and build a better India.
